Evolution's Achilles' Heels

Many people believe that the universe, the Earth and all life in it are the result of uncontrolled natural processes, that have been taking place for billions of years.

And despite the omnipresent glorification of the evolutionary world opinion, not all scientists agree that evolution is a scientifically valid explanation of our origins. On the contrary, there are increasing numbers of those who come to very different conclusions after examining the available facts and theories. These were written up and reviewed by qualified scientists in the field of 8 key areas, including fossils, genetics or natural origin for instance, who offer us a unique opportunity to view the world of modern science and critical thinking.

English edition is available at the Maranatha e-shop as the Achillovy paty evoluce movie on DVD.
